Judge Gaynor's Decision In the Brooklyn Trolley Mandamus Case.

STRIKE NEARING THE END.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.-Justice Gaynor of the supreme court handed down his decision on the application of Joseph Loader for a mandamus to compel the Chicora, was seen floating off Gler Brooklyn Heights railroad to operate its Haven, 20 miles north, at noon today. cars in sufficient numbers to accommodate the traveling public on the Fulton street, Putnam avenue, Greene and Gates and the Tompkins avenue lines. He signifies his intention of granting a mandamus, the form to be determined on the argument of counsel in court to-follows: "It is my duty to declare the tion is not in the position of a mere private individual or company carrying on basiness for private gain, which may suspend business temporarily at pleasure. On the contrary it has a dual relation; a public relation to the people of the state and a private vote to its stockholders. It must not be forgotten here, though it may seem to be growing, not wholly forgotten elsewhere, that in its chief aspect it is a public corporation having duties to perform to the public which transcend any obligation which in its private aspect it owes to its stockholders. It has received franchises of great value from the state and had conferred upon it the state's transcendent power of eminent domain. In return it took upon itself the performances of public duties and functions in the performance of which it is in effect not an independent individual or entirety but the accountable agent of the state.

"The duty of the company now before the court is to carry passengers through certain streets of Brooklyn and to furnish, man and operate cars enough to fully accommodate the public. It may not lawfully cease to perform that duty for even one hour. The directors of a gain, stop business and refuse to emfor such are the existing legal, industrial and social conditions. But the directors of a railroad corporation may not do the like. They have duties to the public to perform, and they must perget labor to perform such duties at what pay they offer, then they must pay more and as much as is necessary to get it. Likewise, if they must adopt more lenient or just conditions. They may not stop their cars for one hour, much less one week or one year, thereby to beat or coerce the price or conditions of labor down to the price or conditions they offer. For them to do so would be a defiance of law and of government, which becoming general would inevitably, by the force of example, lead to general disquiet, to the disintegration of the social order and even the downfall of the government itself. Experience shows the wisdom or our fathers in retaining at least some control of corporations to whom are given public frauchises for
